

50 emerging leaders in Arizona law for 2025

Recognizing emerging leaders in law is vital to fostering innovation and progress in the legal profession. These rising stars bring fresh perspectives, drive diversity, and address evolving challenges. Highlighting their achievements inspires others, ensures a robust leadership pipeline, and strengthens the profession's ability to adapt to future societal needs.

Rory Juneman

Lazarus & Silvyn

Practice areas: Real estate, zoning and land use

Background: Juneman brings extensive experience to Lazarus & Silvyn in the practice areas of real estate, zoning and land use planning, including a specialization in sustainable development. He has represented clients in land use entitlement processes and hearings, negotiations with local jurisdictions, agencies and neighborhoods, and before boards of adjustment, planning commissions and design review committees. He also has worked with local jurisdictions to draft zoning ordinances and planned area developments.

Professional accomplishments: Juneman was named a partner at Lazarus & Silvyn in January 2022. He is a graduate of Baylor University and a graduate cum laude from the University of Arizona James E. Rogers College of Law. He currently serves on the boards of the Metropolitan Pima Alliance and the Law College Association at the James E. Rogers College of Law.
